Coordinator Spotlight

My name is Dan Peters. I live near Knoxville, TN with my wife Rosalie. I have two married children and two grandchildren. In May I am expecting to be a great grandfather.

Looking forward to that. I have been an active part of the Seventh-day Adventist Church most of my life. I was a seventh and eighth grade teacher, Junior Academy principal, Superintendent of Education, and Academy Principal, a total of 38 years.

In my retirement, my wife and I have traveled all over the world and been part of at least fifteen mission trips. I am a woodturner, handyman around the house, and I golf four or five times a week. I've heard the term, "will work for food" so I adapted it to golf, "will work for golf" as I work at the golf course one day a week. It makes it affordable that way.

Since I have invested most of my life to Adventist education and have been interested in seeing Adventist children being in church school, I thought the PFE program could be the assistance that could make that possible for some families. In addition, giving children the opportunity to experience the joy of service is something else that I see as an important part of character building. So I have been the coordinator for the PFE program for Knoxville Adventist School since its' beginning. That would be four or five years, maybe more or less. Can't remember! That's what happens when one gets old!

I know that families in our PFE program are thankful for the opportunity to be a part of it. So may God continue to bless.

Understanding PFE Guidelines

Students and mentors will be matched one-to-one.

PFE is designed to allow one student to build a personal relationship with one mentor, not only for the companionship and assistance for the mentor, but also for the enrichment and development of the student. Individual visits provide a neutral environment where the student and mentor can let their guard down and focus on one another. If a student had more than one mentor OR a mentor had multiple students, the singular focus on the friendship (intended by PFE) might suffer.

Reminders

- Virtual visits (phone calls, Zoom, etc.) do not count towards PFE scholarship.
- Do you want to be featured in the newsletter as a 'student spotlight?' Send us a picture or good story about your friendship with your mentor.
